

Artfully combining realistic features such as pinecones and frosted needles with overt hallmarks of an imitation tree (ie metal hinges at the bases of the branches), this tree is a really charming little creation.

We like that it has a realistically rough and bumpy “bark pole” for a trunk, as opposed to the covering of needles or tinsel used on many other artificial trees. The pinecones give a lovely depth of colour, which is precisely the sort of detail the devil is in.

In terms of setup, there’s not a lot to it. The tree is sufficiently well decorated to use straight out of the box, but there’s space for a few added lights and baubles if you so wish. Comes attached to its own plant pot stand.
